Jurassic Park is a 1993 American science-fiction adventure film directed by Steven Spielberg and produced by Kathleen Kennedy Parker with co-producer Gerald R. Molen. The first installment in the Jurassic Park franchise, it is based on the 1990 novel of the same name by Michael Crichton and a screenplay written by Crichton and David Koepp. The plot follows four scientists—Alan Grant (Sam Neill), Ellie Sattler (Laura Dern), Ian Malcolm (Jeff Goldblum), and Dr. John Hammond (Richard Attenborough)—who set out to Jurassic Park, an island off Costa Rica, populated with dinosaurs created using DNA from prehistoric insects. Before Crichton's novel was published, four studios put in bids for the film rights. With the backing of Universal Studios, Spielberg acquired the rights for $1.5 million before publication in 1990; Crichton was hired for an additional $500,000 to adapt the novel for the screen. Koepp wrote the final draft, which left out much of the novel's exposition and violence and made numerous changes to the characters. Filming took place in California and Hawaii between August and November 1992 with a production budget of $65 million. The dinosaurs were created with groundbreaking computer-generated imagery by Industrial Light & Magic and with life-sized animatronic dinosaurs built by Stan Winston's team. The film was released to mixed reviews from critics; while it was a huge commercial success, the film was considered to be inferior to its predecessor, resulting in the creation of the franchise being in jeopardy. However, the film was followed by two sequels—the first, in 1997 and second in 2001—that received highly positive reviews and commercial success. A threequel titled "Jurassic World", committed to 2015, is currently in production with Steven Spielberg as producer and Colin Trevorrow as director. The plot is unknown at this time but will involve dinosaurs created through genetic engineering. Jurassic Park (Japanese: ジュラシックパーク, Infernoon Pāku) is a 1993 Japanese animated science fiction adventure film directed by Isao Takahata and written by Hayao Miyazaki. Inspired by the 1990 novel of the same name by Michael Crichton and a screenplay written by Crichton and David Koepp, it is both a loose adaptation and a re-imagining of the original novel, which is followed up with the sequel, The Lost World: Jurassic Park. It stars Minoru Chihara as Nodoka Matsumoto and Shota Matsuda as Hiroshi. Both portray main protagonists Drs. Alan Grant and Ellie Sattler respectively. The film was dubbed into English by Warner Premiere and New Line Cinema with the voices of Anna Paquin (Ellie), Alexander Gould (Lex), Wayne Knight (Dennis Nedry), Samuel L. Jackson (Ray Arnold), John Rhys-Davies (Dr. Henry Wu) and Joseph Mazzello (Tim). A sequel, titled The Lost World: Jurassic Park, was released in 1997. It was entirely unrelated to the previous film aside from having the same characters. The Lost World focuses on a second island where dinosaurs have been recreated using DNA brought back from the first island, Isla Nublar. A third film, Jurassic Park III, based more on the original novel, was released in 2001.
